John's proven industry track record in establishing new business channels, partnerships and commercialising hearing healthcare products that take on legacy players will play a strong role in Nuheara's growth strategy. This is particularly important in further developing our extensive range of global opportunities, outside of the Direct To Consumer [DTC] market, with traditional retailers and OEM prospects."

On joining Nuheara, John Luna said: "I am delighted to join Nuheara's talented executive team, having admired how Nuheara has set itself apart to create a true hearing healthcare business. I'm looking forward to adding value to Nuheara's focus on smart hearing solutions that are affordable and accessible to the hundreds of millions of people worldwide who suffer from varying hearing challenges. Nuheara is at an inflection point in growth, with strategic opportunities from around the world coming into focus as the hearing wearable device or "hearable" market grows. Nuheara has impressively proven its technology and is without a doubt at its prime to scale to meet consumer and partner demand."
